

HAGEN SETS PACE FOR SECOND-DAY QUALIFIERS AT SKOKIE

WITH 141, BRITISH CHAMP BIDS FOR U. S. GOLF CROWN

Duncan Slips, But Gets "Under"—Bobby Jones Shows Form.

By GRANTLAND RICE.
SKOKIE COUNTRY CLUB, GLEN COE, Ill., July 11. — Walter Hagen today moved his British golf crown a trifle over the right ear in the hope that by Friday night he might have a companion coronet to wear through the coming year.

No golfer in the long history of the game has ever worn the British and American crowns together, but Hagen, by his brilliant play through the Skokie Valley, proved that he is still at the top of his winning form and that nothing but a sensational whirl will beat him back from dominating the twin heights of golf.

Hagen Draws Crowd.
It is no light trick to be able to stand with one foot on Sandwich and the other on Skokie, 4,200 miles apart, bestirring this broad world of golf like a Colossus of old. Not even Colossus the First had any such display of feet when he was at the top of his most resilient and elastic form.

Paired with George Duncan and so drawing the bulk of the gallery, Hagen fought his way through a torrential downpour in the forenoon for a 71. In the afternoon test he turned in a 70 for a total of 141 strokes. Moving along as serenely and steadily as a flawless machine, he was hitting his shots with complete skill and confidence, and once upon the green his putting blade missed few chances to find the bottom of the cup from any reasonable range.

Rain Hinders Duncan.

The big gallery which followed Hagen and Duncan ran into a series of thrills. The sun was shining brightly and the gay, vivid dresses of several hundred women lent the touch of color that not even a massed football crowd can show. There was a flutter of orange and crimson tints outlined against the Skokie oaks and maples and an added touch of excitement as Duncan opened brilliantly with a 3-4-5, three strokes in front of the other players. At this point a front of the southwest a cloud as black as midnight scurried over the course and within two minutes a heavenly tidal wave sent the gallery hurrying to cover under trees and shelter houses. This downpour, which lasted for thirty minutes or more and turned the greens into havens for runaway streams, did not dampen Hagen's mood and at the same time it spun Hagen along.

The Scot stylist lost his touch around the soaked greens and this time he never recovered. In fact, he struck him with renewed force in the afternoon, when he soon lost all confidence, and at one stretch took three putts on five successive greens to find long straight drives and fine angles to the pin.

Hagen's Control Superb.
Here is one sample of Duncan's play after the rain began. Coming to the long fifth he was at the edge of the green on his third stroke. He stopped twelve feet short of the pin, next putt, three feet up a stream of water, stopped a foot short. His third putt stopped a foot short and he had added a 7 where two putts would have given him a 5. Hagen, twenty feet away from the pin on the green, pitched over the water within a foot of the cup, where a ball stopped abruptly in the grass. In addition to his good golf it was the wonderful pitch which Hagen showed with a short pitch and his third shot at held him so low. In no less than seven occasions from off the green, he pitched to within less than two feet of the cup, hitting with stroke with boldness and confidence, with firm wrists and a body as immoveable as granite.

In the afternoon the sun was again steaming hot with most of the water well dried off and when the pair started out again the gallery had more than doubled, with lines forming up and down the fairway upon either side of the course. It was through this excited human lane that Hagen and Duncan, slashed the ball down the green. Hagen held to his steady aim, making few mistakes. But when he slipped it was worth more than the price of admission to see the spectacular recoveries. For Hagen, at the second and tenth holes he was off the green in the hole with bunkers or mounds to catch the ball. Yet in each case he pitched to within twenty inches of the cup, leaving a simple tap for the par.

What part of the daily bedecked gallery which did not follow the Hagen-Duncan trip get sail after Bobby Jones and Leo Diegel, known as the "Green" and "The Two Youngsters," aged 20 and 23, went morning in a pair of 72's and evening without any crowding as if they were out for practice. Jones had a 36 against a 35-37 for Diegel. In the afternoon Jones got into more trouble, mixing up sixes and threes several occasions. He took 38 and then after a fine start well after 30 many heart-cracking appointments on the green.

FINALS REACHED IN DOUBLES PLAY

Charest and Johnson Face Hillen and Yencken at Dumbarton Today.

Clarence H. Charest and Col. W. C. Johnson defeated Purinton and Lincoln, 2-6, 7-5, 6-1, in the semi-finals of the men's doubles at Dumbarton Club yesterday afternoon.

In the fourth round, Hillen and Yencken defeated Hixon and Knapp, 6-0, 6-1, and then proceeded to win over Doyle and Balingier, 6-2, 7-5, in the other semi-final match.

Hellen gave the best exhibition of all-round tennis that has been seen on the Dumbarton courts this season, his placements were nothing short of remarkable, he was quick and accurate at the net, and his service was all that could be desired.

The final match of the tournament between Charest and Johnson playing against Hillen and Yencken will be played at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon.

Dr. W. L. Glazebrook will umpire the final match.

Thrills Abound.
The remarkable feature of Jesse Guilford's game was that whenever the amateur champion slashed one to the woods or deep into the rough he invariably got his par.

One thing about this tournament is that thrills are die away. There is a case of the young homebred from Quaker Ridge. Johnny has been picked as one of the homebred hopes, but in his first round he ran a 76 strokes. After this, well after Hagen had closed, Farrell returned a 68 for the second round of the day. Here is Farrell's set of astonishing figures:
Out—4-3-4-5-4-25-34
In—5-3-4-3-4-4-24-68

Youth Leads Amateurs.
Eddie Held, who took the measure of Bobby Jones and Jesse Guilford, is an 18-year-old golfer from the public links of St. Louis. He is the same youngster who carried Chick Evans to the twenty-first green in the last Western championship. Held is a slight, slender youngster with a sound game, a game that will take him a long way up the hill before he is through with the thirty years of competition that still remain.

Dave Herron, ex-amateur champion, had the toughest experience of the day. After a good morning round he was breezing along easily until he took a six at the seventeenth, and then followed this with a neck-breaking eight at the home hole, where he shelled the woods over the out-of-bounds fence. A six here would have pulled him nicely through, and the hole is a simple five. Once again 153 strokes just made the qualifying grade. This was the same margin that prevailed yesterday, showing the speed of the big fast field. As an average three or four strokes more have been quite enough, but the ancient game is getting swifter every moment that you live and breathe. The day seems to be coming when the winner will be forced to get around in nothing to lead the long parade.

Hagen Looks Best.
From all the golf played today Walter Hagen's game was the most impressive, considering his score. We have never seen a golfer play with greater deliberation or with more sure confidence, one who

The Meridian A. C. walloped the Bloomingdale A. C. at the Catholic University field Sunday. Ott was in fine fettle for the victors allowing but four scattered bingles and fanning eight batters. Sunday, the

was less disturbed by some journey into trouble. He had the same serenity and poise on his shots from bunkers and thick, wet grass that he had from the middle of the fairway. "You can't get out of trouble by wishing you were out," he said today. "I expect to get into my share of trouble, so when I do I am not shocked or disappointed."

It is worthy of note that Hagen, the homebred, was followed by Farrell, the homebred, Uncle Sam's products running one-two. Just back of these came John Black, of California, and Clarence Hackney, of Atlantic City, 3,500 miles apart in their habitats, but neck and neck in their scoring work. Delgel and Held, two other young homebreds, were just behind, another big boost for home-made golf. Black, coming in late with 146, threw out four disheartened entries who were bunched at 153. The boys hung on with warning hope until Black sank his last putt. As it is now, after a two-day test, the leading stars who took the trail are safely in. Among those sure to start for the big prize on Thursday morning will be Hutton, Hagen, Duncan, Barnes, Mitchell, Kirkwood, Evans, Jones, Guilford, Delgel, Sarazen, Black, Hackney and other top liners who are given keen consideration. No entry with a good chance to win has slipped and fallen by the rocky wayside, and this assures a series of thrills when the seventy-two-hole trip swings under way after the final qualifying test on Wednesday.

COLES WINS TWO SWIMMING RACES

Miss Florence Skadding Breaks Tape in Two Women's Events.

While Mark Coles, of Central High School, and Florence Skadding, of the Washington Amateur Swimming Club, won first places in the two events for men and women at the Tidal Basin swimming meet yesterday, both performers were pushed to the limit.

In the 50-yard swim for men Coles just nosed out Robert Darnell in 26 flat, remarkably good time for open water swimming. Miss Skadding captured the 40-yard swim from Helen Gant and Florence Damon.

In the 40-yard swim Otis Turner, a Western High lad, led Coles the major portion of the way, but the more experienced Central boy forged in front for a win by five yards at the finish.

The results follow:
50-yard swim for men—Won by Mark Coles; second, Robert Darnell; third, Mathew Twomey. Time, 26 seconds.
40-yard swim for women—Won by Florence Skadding; second, Helen Gant; third, Florence Damon. Time, 27.3 seconds.

TEN LEC CAPTURES EMPIRE FEATURE IN EASY GALLOP

Holds 15-Length Lead Early in Race—Queen Blonde Scores.

NEW YORK, July 11.—Ten Lec, owned by Mrs. Louise Vlau, won the feature of the day, the Pocahontas handicap, in a style that proclaimed the race to be nothing more than an ordinary exercise gallop.

At one time she was as much as fifteen lengths to the good but toward the finish she was eased up by Jockey Lang, who brought her past the post five lengths ahead of Wishbone. Queen Blonde, in the second race, at 30 to 1, proved herself worthy of more consideration than she received in the betting and nosed out the favorite on the last jump after a spectacular burst of speed in the stretch.

The horse Tribune entered under the owner's name, "C. I. Irwin," which ran a disappointing race Monday after having once before defeated the victor, Cromwell, was disqualified by the stewards from further entry in race at Empire City.

No persons were punished for the miserable showing.
